Continuous Ink Supply Systems

CISS for Epson

One of the biggest problems in home printing today is the cost of replacement inks. You also have the inconvenience of having to change your cartridges constantly if you do a lot of printing and even lost prints if you run out of ink at the wrong time.

The JR Inkjet continuous ink system is one way to combat both of these issues at once. Prefilled with 320ml of high quality JR Inkjet ink, these continuous ink systems are the equivalent to many cartridges worth of prints ultimately saving you 95% on your overall printing costs. You don't need to swap out cartridges when your printer is running low on ink either, all you do is simply top up the easy access external reservoirs and you'll never run out of ink during a crucial print again.

CISS stands for Continuous Ink Supply System. It is the means of supplying a continuous flow of ink to the print head of the printer without the need to change cartridges.

Large external ink reservoirs continually supply the cartridges with ink through silicon feed tubes. The cartridges remain in place permanently in the printer. The ink reservoirs are independently separated by colors that can be easily refilled only the empty tank anytime. It works efficiently in almost all brands and model of printers.

Infiniti Pigment Ink Refills

Twinned with our continuous ink systems, our Infiniti Pigment Ink refill pack offers an even more professional print compared to that of standard dye based products.

Why are pigment inks better than normal "dye" based inks?

- Pigment inks use surface modification technology to bond the colour particles to the surface of the paper
- Pigment inks improve print quality, colour reproduction and last much, much longer than normal inks
- Resistant to fading from UV light and Ozone. Photos last for up to 100 years
- Pigment inks are water, highlighter and smudge resistant
- Pigment inks work just as well, with perfect colour reproduction on both plain and photo paper

JR Inkjet refill kits are 100% compatible with Infiniti Inks. The JR inkjet refill kit comes with all the parts you need to flush, clean and refill your original cartridges.
